Today, Delheim is run by Michael and Vera's son, Victor Sperling and daughter, Nora Thiel, both of whom are passionately involved in the estate's operations. Delheim is also an official conservation champion, meaning that the vineyards are carefully managed to consider the greater environment. At regular intervals between rows of vines, one encounters corridors of naturally occurring flora that have attracted a diverse array of insects and animals, effectively restoring the vineyards' biodiversity.

But the strength of a family-run farm is often best exemplified by those outsiders who find resonance in the family's ethos, and general belief in what they do.

Upon visiting Delheim, it becomes immediately clear that every person involved in the running of the farm – the enthusiasm of the vineyard team and the dedication of the management and winemaking teams – love this place and contribute just as much to its story as the Sperlings themselves."
